In this edition please enjoy reading about Italy in winter, an interview with Hugh Morgan, Odyssey Program Leader, and our upcoming Inverno Italiano program. I am also pleased to announce that our catalogue is hot off the press and we are well underway with arrangements for our upcoming free travel seminars in Australia and New Zealand. Remember to bring a friend!

Italy in Winter

Italy is one of the most popular travel destinations in the world all year round. Temperatures drop, but they rarely dip towards freezing. A big Christmas market fills Piazza Navona in December, and those keen on the Christmas spirit can see many nativity scenes around Rome, including the grand affair outside St Peter's. Hugh Morgan

During the month of December, Hugh Morgan will lead our Inverno Italiano program. Hugh is one of Odyssey's most experienced and popular Program Leaders. Read about Hugh's favourite destinations in Italy along with his travel tips and his favourite food, films, books and hobbies. Read More>>>

Inverno Italiano

Odyssey Travel's Inverno Italiano program contrasts the glorious cities of Rome, Florence and Venice with visits north to Verona and the mountain villages of the Dolomites and south to Naples and the stunning Amalfi Coast. The program provides time to experience each centre at leisure with stays of 3 or 4 nights in each. Read more>>>

Recipe of the Month

Baked Fennel is one of Italy's favourite root vegetables. Fennel, or finocchio, is used extensively in Northern Italy, especially in Winter. It is a versatile vegetable, which can be cooked or used raw in salads. Try this recipe as an excellent starter or side dish. View recipe>>>
